Biography:

Brett Foraker started his career as a painter and photographer before drifting into the murky world of advertising. His unique and innovative visual style and his ground-breaking use of post-production techniques have been consistently recognized in the US, UK and European television industries. Since 1997 he has won numerous awards from BDA, Promax, Cannes Lions, Creative Circle and D&AD including Best Brand Identity, Best Directed Performance, and Best Film Promotion.

Brett has served as Creative Director of TV channels TCM, Cartoon Network, More4, FilmFour and E4 where he developed the award-winning creative strategy and brand identity for the channel's launch.

In 2003, Brett was appointed as the youngest-ever Creative Director of Channel 4. He also served as a creative consultant to The Electric Cinema/Soho House and to BettyTV.

His directing work for Channel 4 was named best in book by Creative Review and also won gold at Creative Circle and the coveted D&AD black pencil. He was featured in Saatchi's New Directors Showcase in Cannes and was recently named by Boards Magazine as one of the '10 Directors to Watch' in 2008.

He is represented for commercials by Ridley Scott Associates in the UK, Disorderly Conduct in
