Charlotte Hamblin is a wonderfully talented young LGBTQ+ screenwriter, director and actor. Her debut short film EVERYBODY DIES...SOMETIMES starring Tanya Reynolds ('Sex Education') screened at Tribeca Film Festival this year and won Best British Short at the British Short Film Awards. Charlotte recently won the Silver Screen Award for Best Director at the Young Director Awards in Cannes and she has been selected for the 2023 Zurich Film Academy. As a screenwriter Charlotte is currently lead writing the TV series adaptation of Lisa Jewell's best selling novel THE FAMILY UPSTAIRS for Paramount+. She also is collaborating on TV projects with both Oscar award-winning actress Olivia Colman and Keeley Hawes. In the US, Charlotte has an original comedy drama series entitled DEATH DO US PART with Mark Gordon Pictures, and she recently re-wrote a series created by showrunner Sheila Lawrence for Amazon US. Charlotte's further TV writing credits include writing an episode of HANNA for NBC Universal/Working Title for Amazon, and she has original projects in development with Federation Stories UK, Route 24 and Jax Media.
