

ROBIN BOREHAM

Writer

Robin Boreham, who wrote on "Dinosaur", Two Brothers' new comedy series for the BBC/Hulu and is in the writers' room on BBC Studios/Ascendant Fox's "Society", is a drama and comedy screenwriter whose Digital Film & TV Production degree graduation film won an RTS award. From there, she went on to receive two prestigious scholarships for her MA in screenwriting: the BAFTA Prince William award and the Warner Bros Creative Talent program. She's recently graduated from the National Film and Television School, where she worked on a multitude of screen projects and wrote two games that premiered at EGX festival in London. She tells unconventional and challenging but accessible and witty stories, spanning a diverse range of genres and exploring themes such as LGBT+ representation and neuro-diversity while subverting as many stereotypes as possible.
