

Vikas Gogana

Writer

Vikas is an actor and writer from Leicester, who is currently a Resident Creative at Leicester's Curve Theatre. Previously, he worked as a research and development writer on a TV series in development at the BFI and written by Mal Young and Daran Little. He is developing original projects with producer Fawzia Mahmood [Dial M for Middlesbrough], and he participated in the National Theatre's 16-21 Writing for Theatre course. As an actor, he made his professional stage debut in Tom Wright's I Ain't Dumb at the Belgrade Theatre Coventry in 2022, directed by Rikki Beadle-Blair. Vikas has also blogged for The CS Network, a platform that celebrates 'all things ethnic' in film and television. Vikas is especially keen to tell unheard stories springing from the varied and vibrant communities of Leicester, a richly diverse locale with a fascinating yet thus-far underrepresented history.

Television

2026 Mamma
Writer/creator
Original comedy drama pilot script
In development
Producer: Fawzia Mahmood

Theatre

2026-27 Resident Creative at the Curve Theatre, Leicester

2022 Lost In Space
Writer
Short play commission
Tour de Moon Festival

Short Film

2019 The Colour Brown
Writer/Director/Producer
Short film
Berlin Flash Film Festival Honourable Mention
Official Selection: Nexus Film Festival