

Bunny Christie

Designer

Bunny Christie's career designing sets and costumes for the theatre covers some of the most influential productions of the recent past. Born and schooled in St Andrews she moved to London to go to Art School and graduated with a first class honours degree from Central St Martins. Bunny's work was included in The Guardian's Ten Best Theatre Designs List and she was the first woman to win not only the Olivier Award for Best Design but also the first woman to win The Evening Standard and Critics Circle Award as Best Designer. She has worked extensively at the National Theatre designing in all their three theatre spaces and she helped design the National's Dorfman Theatre.
